Bradley Brothers' Legacy

In 1903, Lynde and Harry Bradley established a new business in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. It took courage and confidence for them to risk resources in a new venture, based only on their judgment of what was and their vision of what could be. The Bradleys' confidence was bolstered by the knowledge that in America, not only were they free to start a business, they could also begin again if they failed. The Bradleys, however, would not fail. Their business grew to become the Allen-Bradley Company.

When the Allen-Bradley Company was acquired by Rockwell International Corporation in 1985, a significant portion of the proceeds was dedicated to establishing The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation.

Although it has no direct ties to the Allen-Bradley Company, the purpose of the Foundation is to commemorate Lynde and Harry Bradley by preserving and extending the principles and philosophy by which they lived and upon which they built the company.

As their efforts succeeded, their business grew and eventually extended far beyond its Milwaukee headquarters. Lynde and Harry Bradley remained devoted to the city where they began their enterprise and in which they lived and worked for so many years. Their foundation will continue the Bradleys' interest in helping to improve the quality of life in the Milwaukee metropolitan area.

The Bradleys lived and worked according to several philosophical principles. They believed that, over time, the consequences of ideas were more decisive than the force of political or economic movements. They recognized the interdependence of human endeavors – cultural, educational, philosophical, economic – and they rejected exclusionary emphasis on any single element. The brothers had an abiding belief in the dignity and decency of each person. They felt that only in an environment of political and economic freedom could individuals develop their talents, hone their skills and intellects, and contribute to the improvement of the human condition. The success of the Allen-Bradley Company stands as eloquent testimony to the enduring quality of these principles.

The Bradley brothers were committed to preserving and defending the tradition of free representative government and private enterprise that has enabled the American nation and, in a larger sense, the entire Western world to flourish intellectually and economically. The Bradleys believed that the good society is a free society. The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation is likewise devoted to strengthening American democratic capitalism and the institutions, principles and values that sustain and nurture it. Its programs support limited, competent government; a dynamic marketplace for economic, intellectual, and cultural activity; and a vigorous defense at home and abroad of American ideas and institutions. In addition, recognizing that responsible self-government depends on enlightened citizens and informed public opinion, the Foundation supports scholarly studies and academic achievement.

The Foundation's Board, on occasion, undertakes to define and redefine its current program interests. At present, the Foundation aims to encourage projects that focus on cultivating a renewed, healthier, and more vigorous sense of citizenship among the American people, and among peoples of other nations, as well.

The free society so central to the convictions and success of the Bradley brothers rests upon and is intended to nurture a solid foundation of competent, self-governing citizens, who are understood to be fully capable of and personally responsible for making the major political, economic, and moral decisions that shape their own lives, and the lives of their children. Such decisions are made on the basis of common sense, received wisdom, traditional values, and everyday moral understandings, which are in turn nurtured and passed on to future generations by healthy families, churches, neighborhoods, voluntary associations, schools, and other value-generating "mediating structures."

This expansive understanding of citizenship is being challenged today, however, by contemporary forces and ideas that regard individuals more as passive and helpless victims of powerful external forces than as personally responsible, self-governing citizens, and that foster a deep skepticism about citizenly values and mediating structures. Consequently, authority and accountability tend to flow away from citizens toward centralized, bureaucratic, "service-providing" institutions that claim to be peculiarly equipped to cope with those external forces on behalf of their "clients." This systematic disenfranchisement of the citizen, and the consequent erosion of citizenly mediating structures, pose grave threats to the free society that the Bradley brothers cherished.

In light of these considerations, projects likely to be supported by the Foundation will generally share these assumptions:

- ✧ They will treat free men and women as genuinely self-governing, personally responsible citizens, not as victims or clients.
- ✧ They will aim to restore the intellectual and cultural legitimacy of citizenly common sense, the received wisdom of experience, everyday morality, and personal character, refurbishing their roles as reliable guideposts of everyday life.
- ✧ They will seek to reinvigorate and reempower the traditional, local institutions – families, schools, churches, and neighborhoods – that provide training in and room for the exercise of genuine citizenship, that pass on everyday morality to the next generation, and that cultivate personal character.
- ✧ They will encourage decentralization of power and accountability away from centralized, bureaucratic, national institutions back to the states, localities, and revitalized mediating structures where citizenship is more fully realized.

*I*n addition to these thematic considerations, eligible projects will exhibit these features:

- ✧ They may address any arena of public life – economics, politics, culture, or civil society – where citizenship as here understood is an important issue. It is important to note that our view of citizenship is not primarily concerned with promoting civics education, voter awareness or turn-out, or similar activities narrowly focused on voting and elections.
- ✧ They may address the problem of citizenship at home or abroad, where the fall of many (and the perpetuation of some) totalitarian regimes has made this issue particularly urgent.
- ✧ In light of our emphasis on decentralization, and considering the Foundation's deep roots in Milwaukee and Wisconsin – areas with proud traditions of innovation and experimentation in democratic citizenship – community and state projects will be of particular interest to us. Such projects will aim to improve the life of the community through increasing cultural and educational opportunities, grass-roots economic development, and effective and humane social and health services, reflecting where possible the Foundation's focus on the resuscitation of citizenship.
- ✧ Projects may be actual demonstrations of the resuscitation of citizenship in the economic, political, cultural, or social realms; policy research and writing about approaches encouraging that resuscitation; academic research and writing that explore the intellectual roots of citizenship, its decline, and prospects for revival; and popular writing and media projects that illustrate for a broader public audience the themes of citizenship.

Much of the creative and energetic leadership essential for a renewal of citizenship will be supplied by gifted individuals, who must receive challenging and stimulating programs and instruction at all levels of their education. The Foundation supports programs that research the needs of gifted children and techniques of providing education for students with superior skills and/or intelligence. Research programs investigating how learning occurs in gifted children and demonstration programs of instruction are to be considered.

The programs and funding decisions of the Bradley Foundation are the responsibility of the Board of Directors. At the discretion of the Board, the policies set forth herein will be modified in response to changing conditions and priorities.

The guidelines established by the Board of Directors will normally preclude funding for unspecified and undetailed overhead costs. No funds will be authorized for fees payable to fund-raising counsel. In addition, grants without significant import to the Foundation's areas of interest will only under special conditions be considered for endowment or deficit-financing purposes.

The Foundation will:

- Normally award grants only to organizations and institutions exempt from federal taxation under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and publicly supported under Section 509(a)(1), (2) or (3);
- Favor projects that are not normally financed by public tax funds;
- Consider requests for building projects and limit grants to a fraction of the total cost.

Grantees must possess the resources to properly administer grants from the Foundation. The Foundation conducts an annual evaluation of grants, and grantees are asked to provide periodic reports on the progress of their work.

Application Procedure

Two steps are required in the application process. First, the applicant should prepare a brief letter of inquiry, describing the applicant's organization and intended project. If the Foundation determines the project to be within its current program interests, the applicant will be invited to submit a formal proposal.

The second step is the actual submission of the proposal. Applicants should submit a letter presenting a concise description of the project, its objectives and significance, and the qualifications of the organizations and individuals involved. Included with the letter should be a project budget, the amount of the grant sought from the Bradley Foundation, other sources of support, and a copy of the IRS letter confirming the organization's tax-exempt and public-support status under Sections 501(c)(3) and 509(a), respectively, of the Internal Revenue Code.

Meetings between the Foundation staff and applicants, when necessary, will be arranged after the receipt of a written proposal. Final authority for making grants rests with the Board of Directors, which meets four times a year, February, May or June, August, and November. The Directors act on grant requests after proposals have been comprehensively reviewed by Foundation staff. Each proposal is reviewed according to its unique characteristics. To be considered at one of these meetings, proposals should be submitted by the following dates: November 1, February 1, May 1, August 1.

Whenever possible, proposals submitted by these deadlines will be considered at the next Board meeting. However, circumstances may sometimes require a lengthier period of review.

Because of the necessarily limited resources of the Foundation, many worthwhile projects cannot be supported. The demands on the Foundation's resources also limit the size of particular grants and the ability of the Foundation to make commitments for extended periods. For more information about the Bradley Foundation, including our guidelines for submitting proposals, please visit our web site at www.bradleyfdn.org.

Bradley Prizes 2009

Milwaukee's Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation awarded its 2009 Bradley Prizes to historian Sir Martin Gilbert, University of California, Los Angeles economist Arnold Harberger, editor of The Weekly Standard William Kristol, and the founders and leaders of the Federalist Society for Law and Public Policy Studies in an inspiring and entertaining ceremony at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. on June 3. The $250,000 prizes recognize and celebrate the honorees' achievements in areas consistent with the Foundation's mission – the promotion and defense of liberal democracy, democratic capitalism, and American ideas and institutions at home and abroad.

"services to British history and international relations." Martin Gilbert is an Honorary Fellow at Merton College, Oxford University, and a Distinguished Fellow at Hillsdale College.

Arnold Harberger is Distinguished Professor of Economics at the University of California, Los Angeles. He is also the Gustavus F. and Ann M. Swift Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus at the University of Chicago. Professor Harberger is chief economic advisor to the United States Agency for International Development, a past president of the American Economic Association, and has been a policy consultant to many foreign governments, international financial organizations, and foundations. A tireless advocate for careful economic analysis of policy questions, Professor Harberger is widely recognized as one of the founders of modern public finance economics. He has devoted much of his career to training students who later went on to hold high-ranking positions in their respective countries. Professor Harberger is best known for leading "the Chicago Boys," a group of Latin American students with connections to the University of Chicago who introduced market discipline and market institutions in Chile during the 1970s.

Sir Martin Gilbert is the official biographer of Winston Churchill and a renowned historian of the modern world. He has authored more than 80 books, including six volumes of the biography Winston S. Churchill, the one volume Churchill: A Life, and 12 edited volumes of Churchill documents. Among Sir Martin's other major works are histories of World Wars I and II, the 20th century, modern British politics, the Holocaust, and the founding of the State of Israel. He has also authored 12 historical atlases, including the pioneering Atlas of the Second World War. Among historians, Martin Gilbert is distinguished by his exhaustive research in original sources and his meticulous attention to factual detail. In 1995, he was knighted for

George Will, Master of Ceremonies

William Kristol is editor of The Weekly Standard, a leading journal of politics and ideas. An influential public intellectual, he is a Fox News political analyst, a panelist on Fox News Sunday, and a monthly columnist for The Washington Post. Prior to co-founding The Weekly Standard in 1995, Mr. Kristol led the Project for the Republican Future, where he helped shape the strategy that produced the 1994 Republican congressional victory. Earlier, he served as chief of staff to Vice President Dan Quayle and to Education Secretary William Bennett. Mr. Kristol was on the faculty of Harvard University from 1983 to 1985 and the University of Pennsylvania from 1979 to 1983. He has published widely in areas ranging from foreign policy to constitutional law to political philosophy. Mr. Kristol is also Chairman of National Affairs, Inc., publisher of the new journal National Affairs.

The Federalist Society is a membership organization within the legal profession dedicated to advancing an understanding of the principles underlying American law and furthering their application. It was founded in 1982 by Spencer Abraham, Steven Calabresi, David McIntosh, and Lee Liberman Otis while they were law students at Harvard, Yale, and the University of Chicago. Under the leadership of Eugene Meyer and Leonard Leo, the Society has since expanded into a nationally prominent institution with active chapters at each of the more than 200 ABA-accredited law schools and in 70 major cities across the nation representing more than 40,000 law students, attorneys, academics, public policy practitioners, and jurists. The Honorable Spencer Abraham is Chairman and CEO of the Abraham Group, former U.S. Senator, and former Secretary of Energy. Steven Calabresi is the George C. Dix Professor of Law at Northwestern University and Chairman of the Federalist Society's Board of Directors. The Honorable David McIntosh is a partner in the law firm Mayer Brown LLP and former member of the U.S. House of Representatives. Eugene Meyer is founding President, Executive Director, and CEO of the Federalist Society. Leonard Leo is Executive Vice President, and Lee Otis is Senior Vice President.

Bradley Symposium 2009

In June 2009, the Bradley Center for Philanthropy and Civic Renewal at the Hudson Institute in Washington, D.C., held its fifth annual Bradley Symposium, "Making Conservatism Credible Again." The Symposium featured Paul Ryan, the highly respected congressman from Wisconsin who was lead author of an alternative 2009 federal budget and is at the center of the country's health-care debate, and Mitch Daniels, Indiana's extraordinarily popular governor and former Hudson Institute chief executive officer.

Rich Lowry of National Review, Arthur C. Brooks of the American Enterprise Institute, and Governor Mitch Daniels of Indiana look on as Yuval Levin of National Affairs makes a point during the 2009 Bradley Symposium.

Ryan called for unity among different strands of conservatism, highlighting those strands' commonalities. "Whenever Republicans lose an election, a factional dispute arises about economic issues versus moral or social issues. Traditionalists and libertarians blame each other, each claiming Republicans would do better without the other," Ryan said. "Why anyone would think a minority could grow into a majority by splitting itself in half is a political and mathematical mystery to me."

"The struggle between market freedom and a European welfare state socialism is a moral struggle," he concluded.

"My friends in this room, our only real problem is getting the people to hear the facts and explaining the consequences. You and I must engage ourselves in the saving of Western civilization, the principles of human individuality and greatness. It falls to the honor of the American people to make this decision for mankind: either recover human freedom or sink into centuries of darkness only made worse by the pretensions of progress."

Daniels said that "I think that a conservatism – if that's what we choose to call it – that will be credible in the years ahead will be active, will be forward-looking, constructive, intimately connected with the lives of average citizens, and friendly. Our presentation and our ideas must be born not in abstractions," Daniels added later, "but in an understanding and a connection. If we are really to present a people's agenda, we must not only assert, but assert with credibility, that we understand what is going on in the lives of everyday people. To me, as a young person not knowing really what I thought, I believe I was drawn to the set of beliefs shared in this room by the single most-attractive virtue of conservatism, which is its humility," he concluded. "We do not believe that we have all of the answers. We do not believe a fallen human can. We do not believe that we are so smart and superior that we should order the lives and all the affairs of our fellow citizens as our opponents do. I think it's very easy to practice humility right now, in the shape we're in."

"We'll have to practice another virtue, which is patience; we're going to have to spend some time in the penalty box. And our fellow citizens will eventually say, 'All right – we will listen. Did you learn anything? Did you hear us? Do you have any new good ideas for us?' And if we do – and we will – I have every confidence that freedom and those who espouse it cannot be kept down for long."

Yuval Levin of the Ethics and Public Policy Center and Rich Lowry of National Review commented on Ryan's and Daniels' presentations. Arthur Brooks, president of the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, moderated. An edited transcript and selected video clips of the Symposium are available online.
